

Bibliography

The following bibliographical note refers only to certain works of special interest. Historical bibliographies on terrorism do not exist; a standard work such as Venturi's Roots of Revolution can, of course, be used as a guide to the main sources. The same applies to Nettlau's works on anarchism, to Zoccoli (the early period of Anarchism), or Maitron (French Anarchism). There is rich documentation on terrorism in Ireland, Latin America, the Middle East, and the New Left and multinational terrorism, but most of the material is not easy to locate and bibliographical aids are virtually nonexistent. A rare exception is Charles A. Russell, James A. Miller and Robert Hildner, "The Urban Guerrilla in Latin America: A Select Bibliography," in Latin American Research Review (spring, 1974).
