

Chapter Title: Index

Book Title: The Ethics of War and Peace

Book Subtitle: Religious and Secular Perspectives

Book Editor(s): Terry Nardin

Published by: Princeton University Press. (1996)

Stable URL: <https://www.jstor.org/stable/j.ctv173f1cg.20>

JSTOR is a not-for-profit service that helps scholars, researchers, and students discover, use, and build upon a wide range of content in a trusted digital archive. We use information technology and tools to increase productivity and facilitate new forms of scholarship. For more information about JSTOR, please contact support@jstor.org.

Your use of the JSTOR archive indicates your acceptance of the Terms & Conditions of Use, available at <https://about.jstor.org/terms>

JSTOR

Princeton University Press is collaborating with JSTOR to digitize, preserve and extend access to The Ethics of War and Peace

Index

- abolitionism: defined, 169–70; historical Christian, 170–71, 184
- aggression: in Islam, 131–33, 137; in Judaism, 111–12, 119; realist justification of, 83–86; realist perception of, 59–61
- Beautiful Soul: feminist realism concept of, 223; moral convictions of, 216–18, 238
- benevolence (feminism), 234
- casuistry: in Catholic natural law tradition, 42; double-effect doctrine, 44–45
- civil disobedience (natural law tradition), 32–33
- combatants, in natural law tradition, 26–27, 34
- competent authority, in ius ad bellum doctrine, 83
- conduct of war: Christian pacifist position, 188–89; constraints, 258–60; Islam, 133, 161–64; in Judaism, 106–10; natural law tradition, 25–26; realist position on, 65–68
- conformism, Islamic, 134, 135, 138, 140
- conquest commandment (in halakhic tradition), 117
- conscientious objection: natural law tradition, 48; right of, 49
- defense: as justification for war, 33, 47; in political realism, 55–56. See also self-defense
- defensive wars (Judaism), 117–18
- discrimination: in conduct of war, 27; ius in bello requirement for, 88; in realist perception of war, 66–67, 88–91
- double-effect doctrine, 44–45, 66–67
- dualism, ethical, 206
- ethical thought, comparative, 9–10
- ethics: Christian, 197–98; Christian pacifism, 189–93; comparative international, 4–8; of international relations (realism), 58; in Islam, 128; of war and peace in Islam, 135, 146
- ethics of care (feminism), 233–38
- excuse, necessity as, 73
- exemptions, Jewish permitted wars, 103–4
- extremity. See morality in extremity
- fairness (natural law tradition), 20, 27–28, 34, 251
- feminism: converted to pacifism, 221; grounds for war, 253; intentions and motives, 258; position on war and peace, 222, 246–47; radical, 229–33; resistance to political authority, 255–56
- good life (realism), 71–72
- grounds for war: Christian pacifism, 183–85, 253; feminism, 253; Islam, 131–33, 141, 155–61, 252–53; Judaism, 99–102, 251–52; natural law tradition, 20–24, 46–47, 251; realist position, 58–61
- harm, intended and unintended: in principle of double effect, 66–67; in proportionality requirement of ius ad bellum, 86–87
- human action, natural law tradition, 44–45
- innocence, material, 8
- innocents. See noncombatants
- intention: defined, 63; realist use of term, 64. See also motive and intention
- Islam: conduct of war, 259–60; as mission of peace, 132; resistance to political authority, 254; war as justification for spread of, 131–32; war/peace ethics, 246
- Islamic fundamentalism, 135, 137–39, 159–61
- Islamic law (shari'a): contemporary relevance, 147–48; in Qur'an, 148–51; war against unbelievers, 139–40
- ius ad bellum* doctrine: proportionality requirement, 86–87; requirements in, 83, 86
- ius in bello*: discrimination requirement, 88; double-effect doctrine in, 44–45, 66–67; intended or unintended harm, 66–67; judgments of proportionality, 67–68; realist position, 55; with rejection of double-

ius in bello (cont.)

effect doctrine, 66–67; traditional understanding of basis for, 66–68

jihad: conformist interpretation, 134–35, 138; in contemporary Islam, 146–47; fundamentalist interpretation, 135, 137–39, 159–61; goal of, 161, 252; grounds for war in, 156–57; Islamic debate over interpretation, 131–33, 146, 248; as just war, 146

Judaism: attention to diplomacy and war, 246; conduct of war, 260; intentions and motives, 257; morality in extremity, 260–61; resistance to political authority, 254. See also wars, commanded (Judaism); wars, permitted (Judaism); wars, prohibited (Judaism)

just cause: in ius ad bellum doctrine, 83; in ordinary morality, 84–86; realist position, 83–84

justice, radical feminism, 21

just war: Alexander of Hales, 18; of Aquinas, 18–19; Christian pacifist view, 189–93; discrimination as principle of, 67; doctrine of Christianity, 123; Islam, 131–33, 266; jihad as, 146; Judaism, 265–66; of natural law tradition, 24–25, 41–43, 251, 265; preconditions for (Alexander of Hales), 18; realist perception, 58–61; war to disseminate Islam, 131; Western concept, 131. See also unjust wars

last resort, in ius ad bellum doctrine, 83

liberalism, feminism in, 214–15

love: as motivation of Christian pacifism, 187–88; in natural law tradition, 17

loyalty: in realism, 81; in Weak Realism, 83

maternal thinking (Ruddick), 236

messianic war, Judaism, 99

military revolution, Islam, 129–30

Moderate Realism, 81–82

moral constraints: Catholic natural law tradition, 26–28; in Islamic conduct of war, 133

moralism in foreign policy (realist view), 60–61 morality: Catholic natural law conception, 44–45, 48; concept in Strong Realism, 81; of feminists, 234; in foreign policy (realist view), 60–61; in individual life, 69; at level of individual action, 81; in natural law tradition, 44–45, 245; presumption against preemptive and preventive wars, 85–86; of realism, 54–55, 57, 60–61, 74, 245; realist conception of, 233–34; realist just cause, 83–86; realist views of relationship to prudence, 69; rejection of ius ad bellum proportionality argument, 86

morality in extremity: Christian pacifist tradition, 189–93; in Judaism, 110–11; natural law tradition, 28–30; realist perception of, 68–73

moral necessity, 72

moral norms (Aquinas), 26

moral principles: application to individual actions, 42; formulation in terms of peace, 43; natural law tradition, 17

moral skepticism, in Strong Realism, 80 motive: defined, 63; in realist tradition, 64–65; with rejection of double-effect doctrine, 67 motive and intention: in Christian pacifist tradition, 187–88; in Judaism, 104–6; natural law tradition, 17–20, 44–46; realist perception, 63–65 natural law tradition: activities of differing moral character, 40–42; conduct of war, 258–59; ethical guidance of, 246; intention and motives, 256–57; moral constraints, 26–28; morality in extremity, 261; moral point of view in, 245

necessity of realism, 72–73

noncombatants: natural law tradition, 26–27, 34, 45; realist view of wartime fate, 55, 66, 88–91; in war, 26–27

nonviolence: attitudes of Christian pacifists, 182–83, 249; Christian, 169–73, 182–83; conception of Christian (Douglass), 204–5; grounds for war in Christian, 183–85; interpretations of Christian, 203–11; irresponsible (Niebuhr), 200; of Judaism and Islam, 249; natural law tradition, 251; realist bias against, 248–49; realist position, 57–58. See also pacifism nonviolent resistance: as form of Christian nonviolence, 169–73; historical Christian, 171–72

obedience (natural law tradition), 51–52
Osgood, Robert, 69

- pacifism: in Catholic teaching, 49; defined, 169–70; feminism converted to, 221; feminist antiwar, 214; nonexistence of Islamic, 131, 150–51; realist position on, 57. See also nonviolence
- pacifism, Christian: arguments for, 199–203; conduct of war, 259; effect of different typologies, 197–99; grounds for war, 253; historical, 170, 184–85; intentions and motives, 258; morality in extremity, 261; position on war and peace, 246; resistance to political authority, 186, 255
- partiality, 81
- patriarchy, radical feminism, 231–32
- patriotic realism, 69–70
- peace: conception of Christian (Douglass), 205; idea in Judaism, Islam, and Christianity, 247; idea of temporary peace under Islam, 130; in Islam based on religious conversion or submission, 130; Islamic fundamentalist interpretation of, 138; Jewish interpretation of, 96–97; Maimonides's conditions for, 116; natural law, 41, 247; in realism, 56–57; as temporary armistices in Islam, 140
- peacemaking: Douglass's conception, 205; nonviolent (Ruddick), 237
- political authority: Christian pacifist resistance to, 186–87; resistance to, 253–56; resistance in Judaism, 102–4; resistance in natural law tradition, 30–33, 47–52; resistance in realist perception, 61–63, 253
- practice (sunna) of Prophet Muhammad, 151–55
- preemptive war (realism), 59–60, 85
- preventive war (realism), 60, 85
- proportionality: ius ad bellum requirement, 83, 86; natural law perception, 24–25; in principle of double effect, 66–68; realist perception, 86–88
- prudence: natural law tradition, 28; realist views of relationship to morality, 57–58, 69
- purity of arms doctrine (Judaism), 109–10
- Qur'an: Islamic law (shari'a) in, 148–51; as source of ethics of war and peace, 128–31, 148–51
- realism: central claim of, 68–69; conduct of war, 259; criticism of, 56, 61–62; intentions and motives of, 257; morality in extremity of, 261–62; perception of morality, 245; proportionality concept in, 67–68; resistance to political authority in, 61–63, 253; varieties of, 78–83. See also Moderate Realism; patriotic realism; Strong Realism; Weak Realism
- reasonable hope of success, 83
- reason of state: distinction between patriotic and liberal, 61–63; patriotic (realist tradition), 69–70
- repression (realism), 63
- resistance: in Christian pacifism to political authority, 186–87; in Judaism to political authority, 102–4; in natural law to political authority, 30–33, 47–52; to political authority, 253–56; radical feminist ethics of, 232–33; in realism to political authority, 61–63, 253
- restraint (Judaism), 106
- right intention, in ius ad bellum doctrine, 83
- rules of war, 28–29
- sabbath laws ignored (Judaism), 110
- self-defense: in Judaism, 99; in natural law tradition, 19, 21–23, 33–34, 250–51; of realism, 61
- self-preservation of state (realism), 68–73
- separatism, radical feminism, 232
- siege law (Judaism), 108–9
- Spartan Mother tradition, 215–16, 229–30
- state, the: concept in Islam, 140–41; in four variants of Moderate Realism, 81–83; Hobbes, 70; morality in conduct of, 68–73; realist perception of, 57–63, 70, 73; in Weak Realism, 83
- Strong Realism: moral version of state and individual action, 79–81; nonmoral version, 80
- symbolisms of evil, 270–73
- theodicy, 265–70
- tradition: Catholic natural law, 274; Christian pacifism, 278–79; feminism, 277–78; Islam, 275–76; Judaism, 276–77; realism, 277
- unfairness. See fairness
- universalist egoism, in Strong Realism, 80–81

- unjust war: Islam, 131–33; Muslim versions of, 140; natural law tradition, 41–43; when non-Muslims attack Muslims, 131
- violence (Judaism), 109
- war: Bull's definition, 56; Christian pacifist views, 182–83, 185, 248–50; Christian theory of, 123–24; Clausewitz's definition, 56; concept with spread of Islam, 129; conditions to be met for war (Judaism), 99–100; defense as justification for, 33; feminist perception, 248, 250; idea in Judaism, Islam, and Christianity, 247–48; Islamic fundamentalist interpretation, 138–39; Jewish perception of, 97; justification in natural law tradition, 33; of Maimonides, 100; moral justification under Islam, 130–33; moral justification within natural law tradition, 41–42; non-Jewish, 105; postbiblical Jewish theory of, 123–24; radical feminist approach to, 230–31; realist perception, 56, 248; against unbelievers (Islam), 137–39. See also conduct of war; grounds for war; just war; preemptive war; preventive war; unjust war
- war and peace: Catholic thinking on ethics of, 40–44, 205–6; Christian tradition, 122–24; conceptions of Christian pacifism, 180–82; conceptions in Qur'an, 128–31, 147–51; conformism of al-Azhar, 135–37; conformism of Moroccan Islam, 134–35; ethics of Islam, 129, 140, 141, 146, 148–51; ethics of (Ruddick), 235–38; ethics in sunna of Prophet Muhammad, 151–55; Jewish theory of, 95–96, 122–24; natural law tradition, 15–17; of political realism, 55–57; present feminist thinking, 221–22; women's history in relation to, 215–16
- wars, commanded (Judaism): by God, 111; in Jewish writings, 97–98; Maimonides, 105; violation of prohibitions in, 110–11
- wars, permitted (Judaism): conditions for undertaking, 111, 252; contemporary interpretation, 117–18; defensive wars, 117; grounds for, 100–101; individuals not bound to fight, 103–4; in Jewish writings, 97–98, 100; of kings of Israel, 118; three kinds, 119; traditional view, 251; two kinds, 100, 115, 119
- wars, prohibited (Judaism): contemporary interpretation, 119–20; defined, 122; halakhic tradition, 116–19, 122; in Jewish religious tradition, 97–98, 115
- wars of conquest (Judaism), 105–6
- wartime emergencies (Judaism), 110–11
- Weak Realism, 83
- Women's Peace Party, 220

